

Kevin Carter

Kevin Carter was raised in urban and suburban Minneapolis, Minnesota, St. Thomas, USVI, Hawaii and Los Angeles. He joined the United States Navy in 1990 to become an electronics technician, and later a network engineer. In both roles, Carter acted as a subject matter expert, known as an ACE troubleshooter, problem-solving for several communications and computing platforms.

Early in his Navy career, stationed in Yokosuka and Sasebo, Japan, Carter worked as a ship's trainer on damage control, maintenance materials and management (3M) systems, supply and logistics, and electronics on three ships. While performing these duties, he developed a passion for helping people in their missions and went on to become a network engineer at the submarine base in Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. He soon obtained the role of project manager and assumed responsibility for installing the first local area network (LAN) on fast attack, slow attack, and Trident submarines.

Carter has since become an esteemed business consultant. With experiences during and beyond his military service, he has amassed an extensive background in planning and managing cross-functional business operations and technology projects. He is an analytical and a conceptual thinker who effectively partners with clients to assess opportunities, facilitate strategic decisions, and drive successful implementations.

His experience extends into the music and entertainment industry. Having played percussion, violin and guitar as a child, he is familiar with a range of musical genres, and has even played in orchestras and African dance companies. Since moonlighting during the last years of his military career, Carter has trained, managed and produced musicians and artists. As a result, he was successful in securing a contract under his company, Live Wire Productions, Inc. with a major record label that has sold well over 100 million records worldwide.

Carter has been exposed to numerous socio-economic environments and believes, whether or not we choose to accept them, we all have the same intrinsic value, our life missions. He is passionate about networking as a means to help clients reach their business and professional goals. As such, Carter is heavily active, both in his community and nationally, and serves in a number of capacities to include Parental Advisory Board member at the High School for Recording Arts in Minneapolis, Minnesota, leadership trainer for Bailiwick, Inc. in Chaska Minnesota, and Fundraiser for Bolder Options Youth Mentorship program, among other prominent positions.

Carter holds a Bachelor of Science degree in Technical Management from DeVry University and a Master's in Business Administration from Keller Graduate School of Management. He currently works as a business, sports, and entertainment consultant.