Latasha Holliman graduated from Savannah State University with a BA in English Language and Literature, and the Savannah College of Art and Design, with an MFA in Writing.

She has over ten years of experience in higher education as a tutor, records coordinator, administrative professional, editor and English Instructor. In each of those capacities, writing played a pivotal role in her day-to-day functions. Latasha has a love for literature, politics, and business and studies those areas with fervor.

Now, as a full-time writer, Latasha is ready to put her knowledge of creative composition to work for Level 10. She is dedicated to creating trusting relationships with clients to understand their goals, tailor their message, and to write and edit with their unique audience in mind.
